The meeting of 1st September opened at 7.45 p.m. with nineteen people in attendance. As at that time the Club had seventeen financial members. A guest speaker from Sydney was to have attended with the VIC 20 but due to unforeseen circumstances did not appear. An apology was sent from Commodore in Sydney and we were promised a showing of the VIC 20 in October.

As Bob Kosse, our Public Domain Librarian, was on holiday, John Aylmer advised that the library now has twenty programmes available to members. We would remind members that these programmes are available for copying atthe monthly meetings - bring along your cassette machines and cassette tapes and have the programmes you are interested in, copied.

Our Chairman, Phil Lyon, introduced "Problem Time" where members can announce their difficulties with programming and, hopefully, gain assistance from fellow members.

John Aylmer organised a tour of the State Government computer centre for Tuesday, 15th September. Interested people were to meet at Turbot Street at about 6.45 p.m. for the tour.

The meeting closed at 8.05 p.m. for general discussion.

The meeting of the Group on 6th October saw a turn-out of twenty-six people and started at 7.40 p.m.. Roger Davis from Commodore Sydney was introduced to the meeting. A questionnaire was handed out to ascertain the interests and capabilities of those attending. This will assist the Committee in arranging functions and lectures of interest to the Group. The meeting was reminded that a book library and Public Domain Library were in existence and a list of what is available from each of these libraries will be handed out in due course.

Our Chairman advised the meeting that Greg Perry and John Aylmer had agreed to run short lectures, starting next month, on machine codes, basic language, pet hardware and operating systems.

Roger Davis gave the meeting a run-down on the VIC 20 and answered questions from the Group.

The meeting closed at 8.30 p.m. for general discussion.

At the meeting of 3rd November there was good attendance with more new faces.

As John Aylmer was in Sydney Lex Hinckley kindly stepped in and gave the meeting a talk on basic language. Bill Brown showed off some new hardware and Greg Perry who was set down to give a lecture was unable to do so due to lack of time.

Bob Kosse and Bill Brown also gave an outline on what is available from the libraries.

The meeting closed at 10.00 p.m..
